The average daily circulation of the Barre Daily Times for the week ending Saturday was copies, the largest paid circulation of any daily paper in this section.

4,605

A Boston magistrate having declared that repairing an automobile on Sunday is not labor within the meaning of the law, a great many autoists will agree with the Concord Monitor that tinkering a motor car is about the nearest imitation of work they have run up against.

The same John T. Shea who caused no little excitement on the west side of the state over the liquor issue a few months ago is now stirring things up in Massachusetts. Shea has a faculty of doing it because he handles the liquor question with gloves, being opposed to the sale of it as a beverage and not being backward about saying so.

Encouraged by the success of the first race meeting of the year the Gentlemen's Driving club of Barre will put on another meet on the local track the ninth and tenth of August. The satisfaction given the first time ought to prove the making of the second meet. The square deal is all that can be asked and that is what the Gentlemen's Driving club is giving.

DEMAND FOR CERTAIN KINDS OF WORKERS.

The scarcity of certain kinds of help is well exemplified locally by a casual compilation of the "want ads" in a single issue of this paper. One day's paper contained advertisements for thirty people in various kinds of work. With a few exceptions the wants were all local or state positions. Of this number thirteen were for men wanted in the granite plants in the several departments, seven were for women in house work, five were for farm laborers, and five more were miscellaneous. As a rule, the granite plants of Barre are well supplied with workmen at this time, due to the fact that the closing down of industrial activity in other granite centers has caused many people to come here. It is only fair to state that there are already enough granite workers in town to meet all the present requirements, but the manufacturers, by advertising, took the quickest means to reach them. But for farm laborers and women for general house work there is a great demand, not only in and about Barre but all over the state. Some of the idle granite workers could benefit their health and replenish their pocket books somewhat by accepting some of the farm jobs. It wouldn't be stonished pay, but it would be better than nothing.

Its Use.

After lounging away the first two weeks of his vacation on the farm a Georgia student received rather insistent notice one morning that the carriage needed washing. Finding a tub full of water near the pump, he proceeded to ask whether it might be used for his purpose.

"Jim," he said to one of the old darkies on the place, "what do they use that tub for?"

"I don't know, Marse George," replied the negro, "jes zactly what dey do use dat tub for."

"Oh, pshaw, Jim," said George impatiently. "Been here a whole year, and don't know what the tub's for? What do they do with it?"

"Well, massa," said Jim, at his wits' end, "I reckon dey jest uses dat tub foh to keep water in foh to keep it from leakin'."—Harper's Weekly.

Painters in Big Demand.

There is one class of workmen who in New York at least, do not have to look for employment, but, on the contrary, are eagerly sought for by the employers. They are the skilled carriage painters and varnishers, the latter particularly. The enormous growth in the automobile business created a demand that is nowhere nearly met. There are establishments in the city that are constantly on the watch for good men and while they are waiting for them they run the painting departments of their business at a big loss. Other firms are more fortunate for they possess the right men or the right man, but at the very best there is an element of gambling in all vehicle painting.—From the Pittsburgh Dispatch.

A Hawk That Never Fails to Get Its Prey.

A persistent hawk has taken more than a hundred chickens from the premises of Walter Wade of Bloomfield. The bird is of the pigeon species, swift of wing and seemingly sure of its prize every time. The people about the house have endeavored to scare it away, but it invariably gets its prey. Once it starts on its upward flight all the small birds in the vicinity set sail for it, endeavoring to force it to release its victim, but the hawk soon outstrips them and gets away with its tender morsel.—From the Hartford Courant.

JINGLES AND JESTS

Our National Anthem.

(As it is usually sung by the patriotic public.)

O-oh say, can you see by the dawn's early light
What so proud diewe holl dat the la-la-la gleaming?
Who shraw att psan bti stah aroo the perious night
O'er the la-la-la-la were so gal-lan-tee stream-ing.
And the rick-let's red (silence, save for a few tenors) bur-sting air
La-la through the night t-that our flag-glad still there.

Oh, say does the at stah-spang-le-la-a-ber-yet we-ary
O'er the ban of the freeeen, and the ho-oh-mof thuh bray?

On that store la-la-la; lata-la-la-la-la
La-la-doo-dau die-day, doodle-day doe die-oo-dudd?

Lala-la-la-la; lala-la-la-la-la
La-la-la (&c for three lines; then all together)

Tizt thuh stah-bang-lee-spanner, oh, law-aw may-ay-yit-it-way
Oh the jawn doll the freeeen, an the ho-oh-mof thuh bray.

(Remaining stanzas by the band with spasms from the patriots.)—Life.

"Fretwork."

A small boy of an inquiring turn of mind looked at his father earnestly and asked:

"What are wrinkles?"

"Fretwork," my son, fretwork," replied the pater familias, confidently.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

The Latest Thing.

"Have you seen the latest thing?" asked his friend, who said come along after he had been standing forty-five minutes on a subway platform.

"Yes," he said, "I'm waiting for it now. I'm married to it."—Judge.

A Repentant Look.

A young man was sitting in a barber shop looking at a magazine when an old farmer, with little knowledge or appreciation of literary people stepped up behind his chair and looked over his shoulder.

"Who's them?" he inquired, pointing to a group of portraits.

"Well-known authors and playwrights," was the reply.

"Humph!" ejaculated the farmer contemptuously.

"Just writin' tellers, eh?" Then he caught sight of George Ade's long, solemn face, and his eyes lighted up.

"That's the one I like," he said with decision, putting his finger on Mr. Ade's mournful countenance.

"Oh, yes; nearly every one likes George Ade," agreed the young man.

"His humorous writings are—"

"Don't know nothin' 'bout his writin', but I like his face."

"Why so?"—curiously.

"Cause he's the only feller that looks like he was sorry for what he'd done."

—Lippincott's.

No Mutual Situation.

The late Bishop James Newbury Fitzgerald in an address in St. Louis once declared that sympathy, far more than eloquence or learning, made for success in the ministry.

"Too many of us, through lack of sympathy," he said, "say the worst, the most inappropriate things. Thus, a young Baptist friend of mine, confiding with a housebreaker in jail, drowned."

"Ah, my friend, let us remember that we are here to-day and gone to-morrow."

"You may be! I am the housebreaker," answered shortly.—Washington Star.

Catching Butterflies.

To catch butterflies you must reach out after them. As a rule you won't catch many in your hand. You must use a net. It is the net that scoops them in.

A hand reach in catching butterflies is no better than a handbill in catching business. It is the net that counts.

The net is the newspaper. This reaches out to all the people and scoops them in. Experience of several generations has shown that the newspaper is the best business bringer.

Take, for instance, this paper. (Most people take it.) An announcement in this paper goes into the homes of the people whom you must reach if you get the business you are after.

There is, indeed, a very much larger net that scoops in the business butterflies. It is stretched out not only over this community, but over every similar community in the land. It is the mail order net, made up of big catalogues and of advertisements in periodicals which are circulated broadcast to catch the unwary.

To prevent that great net—which is really an octopus with a thousand tentacles—from catching your trade away from you, wisdom suggests that you use your home net—the local newspaper.

Usually a word to the wise is sufficient.

If you want to keep your patronage or build it up, you must compete with the butterfly catchers from the outside.

The Dollar is the Butterfly. It has green wings, and is attractive to merchants in the big cities just as it is attractive to you.

If you would catch these pretty butterflies that are circulating around home, you must use the net that circulates around home.

Could anything be plainer?

WHAT TO WEAR.

Buttons Match Gown—Irish Crochet Popular For Cloth Coats.

Matching the buttons exactly to the gown is one of the freaks of fashion. In one of the shops there are tiny buttons looking for all the world like turquoise set in little gold rims. At the same shop there are bits of turquoise set in gun metal or silver.

Buttons play a most important part upon coats now and often give the entre tone to an otherwise simple cloth or serge tailor made. A plain white cloth coat and skirt seen recently had a double row of large Irish crochet buttons mounted on round molds, the effect being quite like cut ivory.

A pale pink satin straw hat is charmingly trimmed with masses of leafless azaleas, pink, deeper salmon, sulphur, maize and ivory, tied with a striped ribbon of the neapolitan ice description.

Many hat crowns are composed entirely of flowers or foliage, and if it is by no means necessary that the leaves and flowers should be from the same plant. Leaves with shiny surfaces, such as laurel and ivy, are very popular, and violet leaves have supplanted the roses.

The costume pictured is to be carried out in tussore, rajah or heavy pongee silk. The little Eton is one of the newest, made with wide mandarin sleeves that are cut in one with it, and it is as chic as it is comfortable. The skirt is eleven gored, with a plait laid at every seam. JUDIC CHOLLET.

Wax Figures.

Each figure in a first class waxwork exhibition has to be remade every four or five years. The wax loses its color and becomes soft and spongy after that time.

Poverty of thought is worse than poverty of pocket.—Bohemian.
